Please provide a brief summary of your expertise and/or perspectives.	My resume reflects accomplishments that could only have been realized through the efforts of many and diverse collaborators. I have significant experience as both leader and influencer, shaping successful strategic initiatives among stakeholder groups. I possess the project management skills to frame and execute on project deliverables, as well as to establish the processes and systems that ultimately clarify roles and responsibilities - important in complex organizations where multiple agents have stake in consumers needs and progress. In all undertakings, I have established trust and stakeholder buy-in. This was accomplished by investing teams in clear problem definition, discovery, goal setting and development of beta test design and by being thoughtful, heuristic and open. This approach, as facilitator, has yielded communities of practice to explore the scholarship of teaching and learning, as well as instructional and extra-curricular innovation.

Please provide a description of your professional, educational and community/volunteer experience.	In developing programs for citizens and consumers, I believe that the most successful programs are those that foster growth, encourage exploration and leadership, and provide professional and personal development. Thus, my interaction and motivation for program development are based upon these premises. My professional history demonstrates that I excel at driving vision, bracketing complex, fuzzy problems and crafting process-centered institutional correctives that lead toward sustainable solutions. These same approaches and sensibilities were brought to my work with St. Philips College and the Office on Violence against Women whereas Program Coordinator I work alongside multiple constituents and many moving parts of the system simultaneously. I can apply these skills as a committee member through the effective use of collaboration, program-tracking systems, assessments and facilitating more opportunities for engagement in community based organizations, leadership exposure programs, online engagement and management, enhanced community partnerships and department development initiatives. My experiences at City Colleges of Chicago and Abilene Christian University reflect my professional accomplishments and hint at the passion I bring to the roles I have played in higher education. I am invested in promoting educational access and excellence. In my 10 years within academia, I have created and taught courses in service learning, leadership, and personal success. I have created new student organizations and served as the advisor to several student organizations. I am committed to academic success at all levels, and I am confident that my experiences in higher education and familiarity with the needs of students and staff qualify me for this position. I welcome the committees consideration and review.
Please share your interest and commitment to racial and economic justice and other social equity issues.	I believe in both access and the access to information. By giving people first hand knowledge and information they can be informed and formulate their own thoughts and beliefs that would influence action. If as a society we only accept disseminated information we limit diversity, we limit action, and we get things wrong. I believe that everyone deserves the truth and the first hand knowledge of things going on as well as the potential impact it has on all groups not just those that it will benefit financially.
Please explain why you would like to serve on this committee.	This committee represents health, wellness, and sustainability. Infrastructure is one of the most influential tools that attributes to disparity among groups. Taking a deep dive on issues related to climate and sustainability and educating citizens as well as committee members on its impact is a resource that could transform lives and offer citizens greater quality of life.
What potential barrier(s) may affect your participation in this committee?	Meeting times
